USA Military Standard

The MIL 810G 1.2m/4ft drop protection is a test standard set by the US Department of Defence and is generally accepted as the benchmark for ruggedised protection of mobile computers and equipment. The test method is used to generate confidence in the overall durability and how materials are used in design to protect devices. The process follows strict guidelines which include documentation, laboratory test methods and standards to ensure each case is tested under the same conditions.

RFID blocking technology

Did you know it is an RFID chip which enables touch-payment on your credit cards, personal info to be scanned from your passport and quick-swiping for train travel, even your dog's microchip is RFID.

RFID chips have tiny electromagnetic fields, which makes them possible to read. All you need is proximity. Imagine a malicious person stood next you on the train and 'scanned' your backpack, in theory they could grab sensitive information enabling them to use your cards or identity without your consent.

Keep Your Business Your Business

Need a simple and effective way to protect your on-screen data?

Magnetic
PRIVACY SCREENS
FOR MACBOOKS

Metal strip connects to magnets in frame

Easy to attach, remove and reattach.
No tools, no adhesives, no installation.

Magnetic Privacy Screens

At work or on the go, hide your screen from prying eyes in a single movement

Are touchscreen compatible

Have an anti-glare non-reflective screen

Have a blue light filter for protection

Effortlessly attach to your MacBook screen and narrow the viewing angle so on-screen data can only be seen from directly in front of it.

Blue light protection

Prolonged exposure to blue light, such as the light of your laptop screen, can have a harmful effect on your health. Targus Privacy Screens help to reduce blue light for better protection and reading comfort.

Why choose Targus cables

- Targus cables are rigorously specified and manufactured to the highest standards
- The wrong USB-C cables may fry your tech
- Cheap cables may not be to the right specifications
- Without the proper cables, the chances of destroying the port and the cable are high, plus there is a fire hazard
